

Going Back on the Kaiser

German People Gradually Losing Faith in the War Lord

In the September number of the Nineteenth Century, an interesting article by Prof. F. Selson Delmer, He, Australian born, had lived for twenty years past in Germany, during the latter part of the time being a professor in the University of Berlin. From the outbreak of the war until May of this year, he was a civil prisoner in Berlin. He was able, however, to go about under restrictions, and to see something of his university friends. What he writes of their change of opinion is instructive. He declares: "Before the war the intellectual classes of Germany were almost to a man on the side of the Kaiser. But many of these people, who in August, 1914, lauded their ruler to the skies as a new Charlemagne, now shrug their shoulders at him and his house. They put the disaster which has come over them in consequence of this war, and the still worse disaster with which they see themselves threatened in the near future, down to the Kaiser's clumsy diplomatic preparation of the war, and his autocratic system. His everlasting pose, his wish to delude himself and them into the belief that he is a second Frederick the Great, his fickleness and impulsiveness as a ruler of German policy have all come home to them. He dismissed March's 'I have not a peer' policy, but just look at the statesmen he has chosen as his chancellors since—first Caprivi, a mere soldier; then Hofmann, the courtier; then the selfish fox von Bulow, and after him the philistine Bethmann, but never a really strong man or a great statesman among them all."

Soft corns are difficult to eradicate, but Holloway's Cure will draw them out painlessly.

A Race of Cripples

Only One American Out of Every Five Is Considered Sound

The military medical authorities have examined our citizens by the thousands. The results of this examination in many instances have been as follows:

Out of every five examined, one is considered sound. The other four are cripples. Some part of their physical organism is affected. The heart, stomach, lungs, kidneys or some other vital organ or function is crippled.

For generations the blind have been leading the blind. The physical body is of no special importance. The house in which we live needs no special attention. It just grows. No matter how dirty it may be. So long as the dirt does not show on the surface, there is no occasion for complaint or criticism. That has been our attitude.

It is about time for us to give the body a proper appreciation. Learn to respect it, to revere it, to care for it as you would for your most precious possession.—Bernard Macfadden in October Physical Culture.

Germany's Stupid Diplomats

Her Government Today Is Distrusted and Hated Everywhere

What will proud Germans think of their read of the ultimatum from Argentina? With what composure will they read of the ultimatum from Argentina? How will they feel about their Zimmermanns and their Luxemburgs and their Bernstorffs, when the full evidence of their incredible follies is laid before the German public? Will the shameless vainglorious by resentment—resentment that Germany has been put in such a bad light by the acts of its leaders, so that her government today is distrusted or hated everywhere, and no one can be found to place faith in its pledges, or to be anything but nauseated when it talks about morality and good faith among nations?

President Wilson does not need to go outside of Germany to find powerful support for his contention that the existing German government has made itself impossible. To have been guilty of such a general stupidity is a condemnation from which there can be no appeal. Ferocious lawlessness might have been pardoned if it had been successful; but failure heaped on mistake makes up an unendurable Dumbheit upon which the German people, in sheer self-defense, will soon be compelled to lay violent hands.—From the New York Evening Post.

Can't Afford to Lose—If we should suffer defeat, if the force of our arms and those of our allies should be broken, if we should find that nothing on earth matters. Our farms, our factories, our homes, our hopes, our lives, we've got to win because we can't afford to lose.—Chicago Tribune.

The Standardized Ship

Enforcing of Civilized Standards for Housing of Seamen

It is not only the speed with which it is being turned out from the yards that marks the standardized ship, but the increased speed with which it can be worked. The feature of the general arrangements is the very large hatchways which enormously facilitate the loading and unloading of cargo. Supplemented by improved port facilities, such as Lloyd George emphasized in his recent analysis of the shipping problem, it is plain that every ton of shipping will account for a proportion of cargo unattainable before the war. Nor has the human factor been neglected. The principle that the well-being of the worker operates for increased output has been adopted in the construction of seamen's quarters on the new ships. The old tradition that the deep sea sailor may live anywhere and anywhere has been discarded. We read of two-men cabins for the accommodations of the crew, the arrangements separated from sleeping quarters, a smoking room for the men—and steam heat! One of the permanent results of the war will be this enforcement of civilized standards of life on all the ships. From the New York Evening Post.

Getting Rid of Weeds

Sow Thistles Killed by the Summer-Fallow Method

In every portion of Manitoba where the perennial Sow Thistle is well distributed, it has, this year, been conclusively demonstrated that this weed can be almost, if not entirely, eradicated in one season, by the summer-fallow method. In almost every infested district the weed commission find good, and in some places extra good, crops of wheat growing on fields that were condemned for this and treated to black fallow last year. In a few cases almost the best crops in the district are upon fields that because of weeds, were plowed up as being of no value and summer fallowed in 1916.

On the other hand, it is being noted universally that where the thistles were well established the grain crops are so starved out that in many cases, even if they were harvested, they would scarcely pay for the work of threshing. The owners of a great amount of land are being given notice this season that thistles infested fields must be given cleaning treatment next year. Several prosecutions also have occurred this year because of neglect of weeds upon vacant lands, hopelessly dirty grain fields and neglected summer fallows.

Long Life Now

A Moral Question

Physical Improvement Is Altogether in the Hands of the Individual

The physical improvement of the individual is a question which touches the lives of all of us. Health conditions, all over the land, are being held and our foremost medical men are now turning their attention to the prevention with scientific thoroughness. The statement is freely made that the death rate in modern communities is avoidable. A reasonable care of the individual would increase the average human life, authorities state, by not less than fifteen years within a generation.

Dr. H. H. Emerson, health commissioner of New York, stated to a clergyman of his acquaintance: "In the conservation of human life men of science have gone about as far as we can get. We have shown people what shortens their lives and what will lengthen them. The masses pretty generally know the truth nowadays about the diseases that cut men off before they have lived out a normal term of life—know how those diseases are contracted and know how they can be avoided. What is left is a moral question—not a scientific question at all. It is the question whether men will do as well as they know. Today they see clearly the results ahead if they follow the disastrous habits and paths on which they have been taught the same. What they need is not more knowledge, but more character. They need character, backbone, will-power—the qualities that carry knowledge into practice. The extension of men's term of natural life with the church today much more than with the medical profession. It is up to the church to take hold and put into men something that will make them willing and able to live as they know they ought to live."—H. H. Emerson, Department of Social Service.

Herr Ballin's Fate

Fallen at last out of favor with the Kaiser, Germany's greatest shipping director, Albert Ballin of the Hamburg-American Line, can survey in all its fulness the tragedy which his master's war has made of his great life-work.

It was to him "an idiotic war," he said so. He was before the war "winning more treasure every day" for Germany than the Kaiser's armies are winning in months, and he said so. His magnificent merchant fleet is now in the use of Germany's enemies or going to pieces in idle Atlantic German ports.

The fruits of his genius and long years of labor have been practically wiped out before his eyes and the anguish of spirit, which must be his can win from the autocrat he serves, is not destroyed, then the allies will be forced to control the seas in their own defense. The very risk of freedom of the seas shows that Germany, when that has been destroyed there will be no question of the freedom of the seas. Commerce will go unweaved where it will. The buccaners had the freedom of the seas as long as they could maintain it. They were put down in the interest of civilization. German militarism must go the same way.—Rochester Herald.

Fixing Wheat Prices

The fixed prices of wheat have put the wheat gambler out of business. After the wheat was out of the farmers' hands this summer, the speculator got busy and pushed the price up an extra dollar, the millers promptly put up the price of flour and the bakers boosted the price of bread. The little game is spoiled for the present year by the price-fixing plan. It would be very fine if the price of wheat could be fixed each year to allow a reasonable profit to the wheat grower and his family.

Freedom of the Seas

Buccaners Put Down in the Interest of Freedom

It would be just as rational to insist on freedom of the air as freedom of the seas. The seas are free in times of peace. To have freedom for the ocean thoroughfares as a condition of peace would insure that some nation wanted to use the ocean for an ulterior purpose during the war. This will be freedom that Germany wants. If the German military power, including its navy, is not destroyed, then the allies will be forced to control the seas in their own defense. The very risk of freedom of the seas shows that Germany, when that has been destroyed there will be no question of the freedom of the seas. Commerce will go unweaved where it will. The buccaners had the freedom of the seas as long as they could maintain it. They were put down in the interest of civilization. German militarism must go the same way.—Rochester Herald.

The Canadian's Creed

1. I believe that the war is a conflict between democracy and militarism.
2. I believe in the right of the allies, and that they fight in order that the people may rule.
3. I believe in the need of Canada to fight and that she is justly fighting on the side of the British Empire.
4. I believe that Canada, as a part of the Empire, should stay with the fight until the last man and the last dollar.
5. I believe that the soldiers have done and are doing their part, and that they should receive the wholehearted support of those who are left behind.
6. I believe in the conscription of wealth; that the men of wealth who have made and are making huge profits through the circumstances of the country's travail should have their money brought into line to back up the soldiers.
7. I believe that every man and woman, rich and poor, owes something to Canada and should do their share and back up their country by the buying of a VICTORY BOND.—EX.

Victory Bonds May Be Registered

The following announcement has been made from Ottawa:—The Finance Minister of Canada has issued a new instruction in connection with the Victory Bonds, which will be of much benefit and importance to many small investors. He has decided to grant the privilege of the registration of all bonds, that is to say, that bonds of all denominations, including the $50 bond, may be registered as to principal and as to principal and interest.

In previous loans the privilege of registration was necessarily confined to bonds of the larger denomination, such as $1,000 bonds or more. Bonds of lower denominations were issued as bearer bonds, with coupons attached, and while offering equal benefits as to principal and interest were liable to being lost by the owners. Under the privilege now given by the Finance Minister, the buyer of any bond (whatever the denomination), may have it registered, in which case the interest will be paid by cheque, and the bond, if lost, may be replaced after proper evidence has been shown.

It is believed that this privilege will be greatly appreciated by many thousands of small investors, who will thus be assured of the absolute safety of their investment even against fire or carelessness or any other accidental cause or loss. This improvement in the issue will involve extra work upon the Department of Finance, but Sir Thomas White considers that its benefits will more than offset the labor involved.

A Worthy Undertaking

One of Blaimore's newest organizations, known as the Nights of Gladness Social and Dancing Club, whose recent charity ball proved such a success, are now turning their attention to the families of soldiers overseas, and on the night of Tuesday, December 18th, will give a grand dance in the Blaimore opera house, the proceeds of which will go towards providing a means of making a right joyful Christmas for the children of heroic fathers whose Yuletide will be spent amid the horrors of trench life. It is intended to give the children a Christmas Tree on or about December 25th, and as there are about one hundred of them it is up to every public and patriotic-spirited citizen to get out and assist the new club in their most benevolent enterprise. Tickets for the dance will be on sale at $1.50 for couple, while a charge of 50 cents will be made for extra ladies and 25 cents for seats in the gallery. We understand that the Coleman band will be in attendance and furnish music for the dance.

Some Malad Administrations Of The 1917 Council

As subject matter for discussion at the annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Town of Blaimore on Monday night next, we suggest the following, which have had anything but appreciable results:

Firstly—The introduction of the "Business Tax," a system that has been found wanting wherever introduced, and to show the fallacy of the measure as far as the Town of Blaimore is concerned, the parties responsible for its introduction were either not affected by it or were among the first to refuse to pay same. The measure was introduced in Blaimore for two reasons, one because the vision of certain councillors was so narrow that they could not see where the business man was paying his share towards the upkeep of the municipality; the other because certain ratepayers did not or would not meet their obligations to the town under the ordinary system of direct taxation.

Secondly—The spending of hundreds of dollars in repairs on a light line belonging to a private concern, which has even been leased by the town, because those compiling the council would not enter into an agreement with the owners of the light plant or system whereby an independence might have been established.

Thirdly—Allowing men to hold office in the council, without their satisfying the ratepayers as to qualifications.

Fourthly—Sending business out of town in order to deprive a ratepayer of the opportunity of retaining what was necessary to help tide the town over its difficulties.

The Canadian Pacific Railway company is appealing to the Supreme Court against the judgment of Mr. Justice MacDermar, of the Admiralty Court, to the effect that the proceeds of the sale of the coal steamer Storstad should be distributed pro rata amongst the claimants for the loss of lives as a result of the sinking of the C.P.R. liner Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence river, about seven miles northeast from Father Point, on May 29, 1914.

Britain Increases

Army and Navy Pay

Advance in Pay Involves Sum of 50,000,000 Pounds for First Year

The British cabinet has increased the army and navy pay, although the increases are small compared with the American and Canadian standards. Proficiency pay at the rate of from three to six pence a day will be payable after six months' service. Instead of two years, as under the present army rule. There is also an increase of one penny a day for each year of service. The present compulsory allotment of six pence daily for private and ten pence for sergeants is abolished.

The navy increase is about the same rate of pay, and the advances to the army and navy now amount to 25,000,000 pounds yearly. The increases involve 50,000,000 pounds for the first year.

One dose of Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms, so that the child will no more be troubled by their ravages. The powder is pleasant to the taste and no child will object to taking them. They are non-injurious in their composition, and while in some cases they may cause vomiting, that must not be taken as a sign that they are nauseating, but as an indication of their effective work.

Automobiles in Canada

Motorists continue to be a most vigorous activity in Canada, according to figures given in the Toronto Star, an estimate of $50,000,000 being held at the worth of cars manufactured in this country this year. Those purchased in the same period are placed at 100,000, or five times the number acquired in 1914, or to about 57 of the population. Canada thus occupies third place among the nations of the world in the use of automobiles—the United States coming first, with 3,000,000 for 110,000,000 people and Britain second, with 270,000. This is certainly going some for a young country like ours, with a population of 10,000,000.

It is overlooked that no inconsiderable number are utilized for agricultural and industrial purposes, causing much economic saving in time and labor. Many users are not joy-riders—Hamilton Spectator.

Uncle Sam's Soldiers

Origin of the Marks of Rank are Explained

The marks of rank on the clothing of American military officers are not the same as those used in the British army. An officer with General Pershing's force has explained their origin. The oak leaf, he says, is worn by a captain, and the poplar leaf by a major, because the poplar is shorter than the oak. The eagle signified a colonel, because the eagle soars over the poplar. The stars are for generals, because the eagle looks towards the stars which shine over all.

An officer's coat sleeve has brown braid round it, while the enlisted man has merely two rows of brass buttons. The overcoat of an officer is cuffless and has various braiding to denote rank, while the enlisted man's overcoat has a cuff. The officer also has two bone buttons on the back of his overcoat belt; the enlisted man two bronze buttons bearing the United States arms—London Tit-Bits.

Accidents to Aviators

Performing Complicated Evolutions Proved a Source of Danger

Accidents of course, are inevitable, and they may not be too frequent in proportion to the number of men who are now in the air every day. It is for the authorities to judge of that, just as it is for them to judge whether an undue number of these accidents can be attributed to avoidable causes. But we are bound to say that the increasing tendency of aviators in this country to perform complicated evolutions very close to the ground suggests to the lay observer that needless risks are being taken. Practice in tactics of this kind is essential part of the training of the fighting pilot. Except for this purpose, however, and especially in the earlier stages of training, we should have thought them unnecessary and dangerous, and that by always altering they may be to the building pilot. If so, they should be prohibited at once—London Times.

The Oldest Written Word

An Investigator Says It Is Thals, Selg, or Tal, Meaning Ice, or Snow

In an editorial discussion of the oldest written word "The Interstate Medical Journal" has been discussing the word meaning ice or snow, which in various places takes the sound of "thals" and "tal". Here is the writer's argument:

"How many if asked what is the oldest word in the world, would answer correctly? And yet the word is appearing frequently in our advertising columns, and it is the name of a therapeutic agent and toilet article in common use.

In the office copies of the letters and instructions given to the envoys of the heretic king of Egypt, Amenhotep (Amenophis IV.) in the fourteenth century, B.C., which office copies were discovered at Tell-Amarna, there occurs a passage which reads as follows: 'You hope that the sale will not interfere with you.'

It was taken for granted that 'sale' was the name of some warlike tribe in the hills of northern Syria; but it was really the name of a tribe, powerful enough to brave the wrath of such great monarchs as those between whose correspondence was passing, should not be mentioned in any other of the voluminous of those times.

Pondering this, a philologist remembered that the word 'thals' was interchangeable, especially in Semitic languages. For example, the name of the tribe of the northern Semitic races and the Turks, called Osman, is spelled and in southern Arabia is pronounced thus, while the empire of Osman is known to Europeans as the Ottoman empire. Now, there came to the Semitic language a word for ice or snow which, in various places, takes the sound of 'thals', 'selg', and 'tal'.

"The mystery was thus cleared up. The envoys had to pass the mountains of northern Syria in winter and their august master expressed a hope that the ice or snow would not interfere with their passage. The Egyptians, having no acquaintance with ice or snow, would naturally borrow the name from their northern neighbors.

When the Arabs desired to give a name to the fabulous magnesium silicate, they chose one which suggested its resemblance to ice, and thence called it 'tal'.

The Kaiser's Hopeless Task

Prefers the Horrors of War to the Terrors of Reckoning

People have wondered why the Kaiser has clung so long and so tenaciously to his hopeless task, with all its bloody sacrifice. May it not be that he prefers even the horrors of war to the terrors of reckoning what peace will bring? War at least is drawing heavily on the Kaiser from the cold light peace will throw on a bankrupt Germany—bankrupt not only in the financial sense, but also in the physical, for in using up 1919 class today the Kaiser is drawing heavily on the future, and working his man-power on credit as well as his finance. No wonder there is evidence of growing peace-hunger among the people of Berlin—many of whom would be glad to hand over not only Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine and all the German colonies but the Kaiser and the Crown Prince along with them. And hence the growing anxiety in the government—Glasgow Herald.
